

life times

Students adopt orangutan

RECENTLY the year seven CHACE class at Chatham High School has been working hard on a geography campaign on deforestation.

Firstly they learnt about rainforests and their climates, flora and fauna and threats, particularly about the Borneo rainforest and how palm oil trees are being cut down for everyday products.

With these palm oil trees being cut down the devastation leads to the orangutans being orphaned.

Then they all brainstormed ideas to raise money for both orangutans and the rainforest itself.

The class decided to create posters and websites, they also sold cupcakes, lollies, gingerbread and cans of drink to staff at the school and parents at the combined CHACE years seven and eight showcase at the end of term.

The class researched a reliable site to donate the money to and that also helped them reach a goal of adopting a baby orangutan for one year at a cost of $55.

They have also bought and planted 20 trees for $100.

However when the students' campaign had finished they had well exceeded their goal and managed to raise $290.40, a great effort by all.

(Written by students Teagan, Milly and Zara)

Above: Kiara Andrews, Marylyn Sendah, Emily Ryan and Priya Bourke at the showcase.

Right: Teagan Phillips selling goodies to raise funds for the rainforests.

Above: Teagan Phillips and Emily Ryan during their presentation.

A great season for m

Taree and District Vintage and Classic Motorcycle Club

HOW fortunate are motorcyclists here in the southern hemisphere

That doesn't mean in Australia we have nothing to complain about, we might get short tempered if it happens to rain, if a strong headwind springs up or a